The Decorations on a Scale of Lavish Magnificance.

President Harrison, Gov. Hill and Thousands of Notables to Be There.

If the Father of his Country could materialize his disembodied spirit and reappear to-night to gaze upon the scenes of gayety that will be enacted at the Metropolitan Opera-House, it is a question whether his august countenance would be corrugated with a frown at the sight of such lavish magnificence, deeper and more severe than that which his counterfeit presentment on the Sub-Treasury steps wears points with warning finger towards the Stock Exchange, or whether it would relax into a genial smile in sympathy with the feelings of the amusement-loving Gothamites of the present

The chances are that the old gentleman would be lenient towards the children of the fathers, especially if he understood that it was all gotten up in his honor, and he was given an opportunity of seeing Stuy Fish, Commodore Gerry and Ward McAllister and the rest of the Four Hundred in all their finery and slory.

At all events it will be a sight such as has never before been seen in New York, and the memory of it will undoubtedly be cherished for many generations of Four Hundreds as the grandest thing ever attempted in the ball line by the great American people.

SPLENDID DECORATIONS. Thousands of dollars have been expended in beautifying the interior of the big building with splendid decorations, thousands more in erecting sheds and annexes that make it look more like an army barracks than an opera-house to the uninitiated stranger, who has only had chance of seeing it from the outside, and the supper and music that will delight the 0,000 or more people who will take part in the festivities have cost a moderate sized fortune.

Everybody will be there, not only the "good people," who belong to the two Four Hundreds, but the masses as well, and the legislators and the Aldermen, and everybody will be as happy as he or she possibly can be in such a crush of humanity.

A 197-FOOT CHAMPAGNE BAR.

A 197-FOOT CHAMPAGNE BAR.

Those who fail to catch the spirit of the occasion when they arrive will find a 197-foot champagne bar handy to stimulate their enthusiasm up to the proper point later on, and the Committee is of the opinion that, thanks to the early suggestions of Mr. McAllister, nothing has been neglected which can contribute to the greatest success on record.

First as to who will be there. Putting President Harrison, the chief guest, with his family, at the head of the list, there will follow his Cabinet officers. Supreme Court Judges and other prominent. Washington officials, many members of the Diplomatic Corps, in all their brilliant court regalls. State and city officials, judges and army and navy officers.

New York will be represented by all its prominent society people, most of whom have secured the boxes at the Opera-house and will occupy them with their families.

The Floor Committee will consist of about fifty gentiemen, including the Entertainment Committee, most prominent among whom are W. W. Astor, W. B. Beekman, S. L. M. Barlow, Gouverneur Morris, W. K. Vanderbilt, Levi P. Morton, Stuyvesant Fish, William Steinway, Edmund C. Stanton, Herman Celrichs, Gen. Martin T. McMahon, Daniel Appleton, Le Grand B. Cannon and Frank M. Lawrence, Manager Edmund C. Stanton, who took the place originally given to Mr. McAllister, will also be Master of Ceremonies.

THE BALLROOM.

The ballroom, which will occupy nearly the satire floor of the vast auditorium and stage, has been decorated in a manner that surpasses in richness and elaboration anything that has ever been witnessed in this country. They were executed by C. H. Rostar under the supervision of Mr. Stanton.

From the entrance at Broadway through the corridors to the ballroom and the boxes the walls are hung with magnificent draperies of flowers and silks, and the lobbies are a wilderness of beautiful shrubs and flowers. On entering the ballroom directly from the vestibule the most conspience of beautiful shrubs and flowers. On entering the ballroom directly from the vestibule the most conspience of its the President's box.

The is placed in the centre of the stage, at the back, directly opposite the main entrance, the stage being on a level with the floor of the ballroom. The box is approached by a broad, low flight of steps from the middle of the stage, to a wide platform, occupying the entire space in front of the box.

On either side is a double tier of four boxes for Cabinet officers and other Government dignitaries. Valances of wine-colored silk plush drape the railings of the Precident's box and the lower tier of side boxes. Long curtains of bronze and marcon silk plush are draped from the top to the sides of the box, and between them a drop curtain of blue silk plush, with gold fringe, and in the centre hangs the President's flag, hand-made, of pure silk.

A GORGEOUS SIGHT.

The side boxes are curtained in plush of two colors. Over the cornice above the Fresident's box a wide brass ribbon from pillar to pillar displays the name "Washington" in opalescent glass, illuminated by electric lights in the reast. Over the pillare '1789 "and '1889" shine in flaures of flame with gold radiations. The name "Washington" is surmounted by a large golden eagle, above which the Stars and Stripes float from an eagle-surmounted staff.

Over the side rows of boxes the National genfalon floats, and over the entire front of all the boxes festcous and garlands of flowers and smillar and ferus and palms are draped.

From the dome long streamers of red, white and blue bunting and flowers and evergreens are draped to the gallery. The gallery front is decorated with draped American flags, State

The third tier of boxes have the State coats-of-arms facing standards of flags on appear-head staffs; the second tier are faced with American flags caught up with festoons of flowers, and the first tier with wine-colored silk plinsh with drapery of flowers.

The proseculum arch is surmounted by a heroin medallion of Washington. The cornice is of red and white drapery, with blue rosettes. From the arch two enormous flags depend to either side. The side pillars are striped vertically with red and white streamers, ever which blue bands are wound in reverse order, forming crosses. The side panels are decorated with National shields and gonfalons and crossed standards of colors. Over the whole lavish draperies of flowers and evergreens are distributed, affording one of the most brilliant spectacles ever seen.

THE SUPPER-ROOM DRAPED WITH SILK PLUSE. The supper-room which occupies the annex is 106 feet long and 35 feet wide on Seventh avenue and 536 feet long and 45 feet wide on Seventh avenue and 536 feet long and 45 feet wide on Seventh-ninth street. The wall panels are hung with wine-colored silk plush, with old trimmings. In the centre of each panel is a shield containing the coat of arms of one of the States centred in a standard of American flags.

A wainscoting of mshogany encircles the room. At the capital of each pilaster between the panels is displayed the President's coat of arms with thirteen electric lights in the shield, and a poised eagle above.

The vestibules and grand stairway are decorated with white and gold drapery and festoons of flowers, evergreens and the National colors.

The long buffet in the supper-room measures 550 feet without a break, and there is a 75-foot annex on the Seventh avenue side. Here Che Eugene Laperruque, of the Hoffman House, will reign supreme, and will exhibit some of the choicest creations of his art. WHITE AND GOLD AND PENTOON

THE MENU. There, among 150 baskets of choicest flowers, he is going to spread dishes of the most varied description, including 112 throids, "58 sugar pyramids and 132" pieces montées." Here is the menu, which is sufficient to make the mouth of every guest water in advance:

PIECES MONTEES. BIX THOUSAND GUESTS.

Here the 6,000 guests will be served under the supervision of Grand Steward Busse, also of the Hoffman House. A table in the angle of the supper-room at Seventh avenue and Thirty-ninth street will be reserved for the President and eleven of the guests. It is the only table in the supper-room; all the other guests must stand.

At 9 o'clock this evening the doors of the Metropolitan Opers-House will be thrown open to the public, or at least that portion of it which is fortunate to be in possession of the big oblong tickets in white and gold, and then the rush will begin.

It will not be long before all the flower-adorned and silk-draped corridors will be thronged with magnificently attired women and brave men. The diamonds in the boxes and upon the floor will flash in the light of the thousands of gas jets above and at the gides, and every one will be on the lookeut for the arrival of the President and his party, which will be the signal for the commencement of the festivities. RIX TROUBAND GURATS.

THE PRESIDENT'S HOSTS. THE PRESIDENT'S HOSTS.

It has been arranged that the President shall be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish earlier in the evening at their home in Grameroy Park. Those to meet him are the Vice-President and Mrs. Morton. Gov. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Gerry, Mr. and Mrs. William Jay, Mr. and Mrs. Kobert Goelet, Mrs. William Waldorf Astor, Mrs. Burke Roche and Miss Helen Hamersley.

As Mr. Hamilton Fish is too ill to escort the President and Mrs. Harrison to the ball, his son Stuyvesant will perform this duty, and the party is expected to arrive at the Opera-House about 10.30 o'clock. In addition Gov. Hill and the Vice-President and his wife and Lieut. Gov. Jones and Miss Jones will accompany them. RECEIVED BY MANAGER STANTON.

They will be received at the entrance by Manager Edmund C. Stanton, who will welcome them and except them within the building where Mayor firant will receive them in the vestibule. Eight trumpets will be sounded when the Preseight trumpets will be sounded when the President enters the building.

He will then be escorted into the ball room in the following order, attended by a guard of honor: The Mayor, the President, the Governor, the Vice-President and Mrs. Harrison, the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Morton, Chairman Fish and Mrs. Jones.

THE GREAT SPECTACLE OF THE EVENING. This will be one of the great spectacles of the evening. In front of the President's box they will halt and another reception will take place and the President will be presented to the members of the Entertainment Committee, the Exceptive Committee and the Committee on Plan and Scope. After this he will enter his box and the grand Quadrille d'Honneur will open the ball.

The music for the ball is furnished by Bandmaster Lauder, who will have two orchestras of fifty musicians each stationed on either side of the ballroom, which will play alternately for the dances and promenades. The dance music will be mainly waltzes and galops, in which all the prominent composers of this class of music will be represented. They will include several arrangements of National and patriotic airs especially in the music for the opening quadrille, which is by Wiegand. There will be only three figures danced instead of the usual five.

SUPPER AT MIDNIOHT.

The dancing and merry-making will continue without interruption till midnight, when the President will be escorted to the supper-room, and there will be a brief intermiss! n. Wine will fine copiously from the big champagne bar, but none will be served after 1 o'clock by orders of the Committee.

A beautiful souvenir of the ball, designed by Will H. Low. E. H. Blashnield and Daniel Huntington, all American artists, will be presented to every patron of the ball. It is in the form of a pamphlet of twelve quarto pages of delicate Japan paper, richly engraved and decorated. SUPPER AT MIDNIOHT.

The railway officials who went and looked over the spot came away sick with dread. The dark mound was a heap of charred remains.

Presently there appeared a wagon loaded up with pine coffins and the blackened fragments of humanity were picked carefully out and laid within them.

One, two, three, four, five, six bodies, and still that frightful heap gave up its dead.

The reene of the accident was the Junction cut, where the train jumped the track while running at terrific speed to make up lost time.

The engine struck a water tank, turned over on its side, and in a second more the train, which was made up of ten cars, was piled up like a mass of wreckage.

To add to the horror the mass immediately took fire.

The eighteen passengers whose bodies remain unknown at the Morgue were imprisoned in the first car, which was telescoped with the smoker.

Of the passengers outside the first car two were killed, one of them, L. S. Gurney, of Brooklyn, having his head severed completely from his body.

OF CARE. Lord Dunrayen Not Pleased with the American Yachtsmen's Terms.

If They Are Not Modified His Challenge May Be Declared Off.

The Nobleman Gone for a Consultation with His Yacht's Designer.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE EVENING WORLD, ] LONDON, April 29,-There is a hitch somewhere in the matter of Lord Dunraven's challenge for a yacht race for the America Cup. from New York, Lord Dunraven did not find them satisfactory.

THE EVENING WORLD representative was told on the highest authority to-day that unless the terms were modified the challenge would be declared off.

In what respect the terms were unsatisfactory was not stated. The reporter called at Lord Dunraven's house, but the nobleman was not at home. He was said to have gone to Scotland, and it is presumed that he had gone for a consultation with Designer Watson.

Endeavors to ascertain in New York further etails as to the hitch in the arrangements for the race proved fruitless to-day, the gentlemen chiefly interested in the matter being busier with Centennial affairs than with yacht racing

From a Roof Four Stories High to the Middle of the Street.

Shortly before 6 o'clock this morning Peter Beth, a German and a carpet-weaver by trade, jumped to instant death from the roof of 421 East Houston street to the street below.

Fireman Jim Smith, of Engine Company No. 11, was walking along in front of the enginehouse at the time the deed was committed. He describes it as one of the most exciting scenes that he has ever witnessed.

The structure is four stories high, with a roof that slopes from front to rear.

Smith saw the man on the roof and supposed he was arranging the decorations. He walked out into the street to get a better view, kesping his eyes on the figures on the roof.

Suddenly the man started on a run up the slope towards the Houston street front.

Not an instant did he hesitate.

When the edge was reached, he propelled himself out into space, with his body perfectly erect, although the arms waved wildly.

The form of the suicide was still erect when the feet touched the ground, thirty feet from the line of the building, and as the dezed fireman still looked, fascinated by the awful spectacle and rooted to the spot, he saw the body bound upward from the force of the fall, and then fall forward on the face almost in the middle of the street, while through the man's frame ran the convulsive shudder of death.

Fireman Smith waited no longer, but ran upstairs and sent a cail for ambulances to Bellevue and Gouverneur hospitals.

The man was still breathing, and he was carried on a stretcher to the Thirteenth Precinct Station-House at Union Market.

Dr. M. B. Hyman, of Bellevue, was the first to arrive, and after an examination pronounced the man dead. His ankles were smashed and his nowe was broken from the fall he had re-

Dr. M. B. Hyman, of Believue, was the first to arrive, and after an examination pronounced the man dead. His aukles were smashed and his nowe was broken from the fall he had received when he fell on his face.

The man worked for Conrad Petre, from whose building he jumped. He arrived at about 5. 40 and made the fatal leap five minutes later. He reached the roof by climbing two flights of stairs and a ladder.

He was forty-five years old and had become a confirmed drunkard. Up to a year ago he lived with his wife and four rous at 230 hivington street, but the family became diagnated with his actions and turned him out of doors.

Mrs. Reth lives at 230 Rivington street with her four sons, Adam, aged twenty-two; Jacob, nineteen, and two others, fifteen and ten respectively.

When Mrs. Reth was notified of her husband's smicide she engaged an undertaker and had the body removed to her home.

EMANUEL HART IN A FIX.

MISS WESSELLS HAS THE STEREOPTICON MAN ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT.

Miss Emma Wessells called at the Jefferson Market Police Court this morning and had warrant issued for the arrest of Emanuel T. Hart, who runs the big stereopticon at Fifth avenue and Twenty-third street, whom sh charged with having assaulted her sister. The Wessell sisters live at 415 West Nine teenth street. They are old New Yorkers, hav ing lived down in the Ninth Ward, from whene they moved to their present address seventee ing lived down in the Ninth Ward, from whence they mixed to their present address seventeen years ago.

Both are over seventy-five years old, and the younger is very feeble.

Miss Wessells said Mr. Hart rented rooms of her, but she ordered him to leave. He moved away on Saturday and left his rooms—the rent of which was paid until May 1—unicoked.

Miss Wessells thought she was doing no harm when she entered the rooms and placed an American flag from each of the three windows. When Mr. Hart came around shortly before 9 o'clock, it is alleged that he started to tear down the flags. Miss Wessells remountstrated, and she says he pushed her out of the room into the hall, and she fell from the force of the push.

According to her story, Mr. Hart then returned and ripped two of the flags from their fastenings and broke the sick of the other one. His conduct is not attributed to a lack of patriotism, but to his anger at finding that his rooms had been invaded.

Mr. Hart was arrested later and taken to court. He denied that he struck Miss Wessell, and was released in $500 bail for examination on Friday. when she cutered the rooms and placed an American flag from each of the three windows. When Mr. Hart came around shortly before 9 o'clock, it is alleged that he started to tear down the flags. Miss Wessells remonstrated, and she says he pushed her out of the room into the hall, and she fell from the force of the push.

According to her story, Mr. Hart then returned and ripped two of the flags from their fastenings and broke the stick of the other one. His conduct is not attributed to a lack of patriotism, but to his anger at finding that his rooms had been invaded.

Mr. Hart was arrested later and taken to court. He denied that he struck Miss Wessell, and was released in $500 bail for examination on Friday.

Many Go Free.

A round dozen of famous crooks who were found in Inspector Byrnes's scoop-net last week were liberated to-day for examination on Thursday, under the nominal bail of $100 by Judge Ingraham, in Supreme Court Chambers.

They were arraigned before the Judge on writs of habeas corpus procued by such well-known lawyers as Purdy, John McCauley, Hoyer, Friend, House and Price, Among the prisoners were Pickpocket Sol Relly, alias "Sheeny Sol;" Ike Vail, the hand-day, under the nominal bail of $100 by Judge Ingraham, in Supreme Court Chambers.

They were arraigned before the Judge on writs of habeas corput-procused by such well-known lawyers as Furdy, John McCauley, Hoyer, Friend. House and Price.

Among the prisoners were Pickpocket Sol Relly, alias "Sheeny Sol; The Vail, the hands shaker, James Johnson, alias "Jersey Jimmy," confidence man; Joe Thompson, beckpocket; William T. Brown, alias "Bill the Brute," an English bank burglar; Tim Oates, bank burglar; Tim Dubuque, alias John Turner, and Maggie Miner, alias Emma Wilson, badger puller.

Assistant District-Attorneys Macdona and Jerome appeared for the people to-day, and argued that the writs were defective, inasmuch as they did not state the full carcer and orimes the prisoners as required by law.

Lawyer Furdy maintained that if that was so, the police Justices were to blame, and if they were they were open to a charge of contempt.

The result was that Judge Ingraham fixed bail in the sum of $100 cach.

They were all able to give it, and so will be enabled to enjoy the glories of the great Centennial, along with their more respectable brethern.

GERMANY'S FLAG RAISED.

Secretary Crain Quickly Remedies as Omission at the City Hall, Although Mayor Grant was absent from his office to-day Private Secretary Crain was on hand looking after the executive's interests. His sharp eye discovered that in decorating the City Hall, while all other nations had been recognized by a display of their national em-blems, the flag of Germany did not appear. He ordered it to be raised at once, Colors that De Not Run.

Celers that De Net Eum.

The storm came just in time to test the quality of the decorations. Those of the regulation-colored buntings, guaranteed absolutely fast by John Hall, 53 West Eighteenth street, did not rup. Patriotic citizens ran after them, but the colors did not run, standing absolutely fast. The harder it rained the brighter they came out. Instead of the red and blue staining the sidewalks or the signs and walls, they kept distinct and clear, and on the buildings decorated with Hall's bunting. The flag was still there during and after the storm, while the sham buntings had become undistinguishable medleys of washed colors.
